13. & 14. See Janet Sobel and Pearl Blauvelt

Two self-taught visionaries.

If the art world bestowed medals for art-community service, dealer-gallerist Andrew Edlin would merit a silver star for his unflagging commitment to undersung, outsider artists. Here, two massive talents hold forth: Janet Sobel, a visionary figurative painter of almost abstract conglomerations of circus colors, reveals an artist in need of a museum survey; Pearl Blauvelt gives us penciled scenes of exquisite detail, observation, and love. —J.S.
