The Double-Sided Dominions of Henry Darger

Tracing an imagined dominion.

On nine double-sided watercolor drawings, Henry Darger depicts one of the most mysterious imagined cosmic kingdoms. These huge works sweep you off your feet with visages of war: Darger's invented Vivian Girls defending their world from onslaught, triumphing, then having to fight again. A war machine in candy-colored gorgeousness and captivating panoramic glory. —Jerry Saltz

Andrew Edlin Gallery, 212 Bowery, through November 7.
