

Et Tu, Art Brute?

AEG Underground
Andrew Edlin Gallery
212 Bowery NYC 10012

Organized by Jamie Sterns

Exhibition Dates: November 17 – January 28th
Opening Reception, November 17th, 6-8pm

Andrew Edlin Gallery is pleased to announce a new project, Et Tu, Art Brute?, which will be on view in our underground space.

What defines being an artist today? How does it feel to make art? Who is allowed to participate, and on what terms?

These are some of the questions that Et Tu, Art Brute? explores. This show has a very simple premise; we invited everyone—no matter their background, ability, level of success or anonymity—to contribute an original work of art.

The response to our Open Call has been extraordinary. Over 700 artists from over 250 cities from around the globe have submitted. We will be rotating artworks throughout the exhibition to show as many as possible. The exhibition setting is being conceived by artist, Quintessa Matragna.

Jamie Sterns is a curator and writer based in New York City. She is currently the Curatorial Director of Interstate Projects and works in the Art Department at NYU. She holds a Masters degree from Goldsmiths University.

All works are on sale for $200. Contact jamie@edlingallery.com for more info.